Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 23.—Yale's football champions conquered Harvard on the stadium to-day by 12 to 0, the Blues making a touchdown and goal in each half.

Probably 40,000 wildly excited spectators saw a memorable battle in which Harvard's unexpected bracing amazed everybody with feats of superb football. But sad to relate, there were so many blunders and bobbles in the work of the Crimson eleven when critical moments arrived that defeat was inevitable.

Probably no Harvard eleven in the history of the Cambridge university ever put up such a plucky fight in the face of what seemed overwhelming odds. Deceived by football critics in general, but encouraged by the splendid spirit of the undergraduates, the Harvard players fairly made the Blue warriors gasp in astonishment when they reeled off a series of sensational plays, which showed that a knowledge of scientific gridiron tactics were not wholly lacking. But the improvement in Harvard's play came too late. Yale was just as powerful as when the New Haven team defeated the hustling Tigers, a week ago, and that carried the day. But to Harvard's credit, it must be said, that the men who wore the Crimson jerseys fought to the last ditch. In fact, with a few seconds to play, a magnificent run by Wendell carried the leather almost across Yale's goal line. Then Harvard fought as if for her life to escape a whitewash.

Harvard Is Held. With only 2 inches to be made, Apollonio, Harvard's full back, crashed into Yale's muscular center men. There was a swaying as a terrific struggle, followed by a fall, buried the Harvard full back under a pile of men. But Yale's defense was like a belt of steel, and Harvard could not gain an inch, and lost the ball on downs. Then came another scrimmage, in which Brides dropped the ball a few inches in front of the magic goal line, but before a Harvard grappler could get the oval for what might have been a touchdown, Goebel and Dunbar saved it for Yale. The time was up the next instant, and Harvard's chances for at least a score were gone.

Harvard's improvement was hailed by the Crimson readers with wild acclaim. It was wholly due to the great individual work of Wendell, who made several brilliant runs; of McDonald, who tackled beautifully and played a great game all the way through; of Newhall, the plucky quarter back, who played cleverly and made some dazzling returns of punted balls, and of Apollonio, Starr, and Burr. But while these heroes shone forth like meteors in a cloudless sky, their individual achievements were nullified by a lack of team work which, showed that something had been radically wrong with the coaching.

"The material is all there," said veteran critics, "but the Harvard eleven does not know this modern game of football as well as do Yale and Princeton. That is all there is to it."

Expected Easy Time. Yale, on the other hand, was practically sure of victory, and for that reason probably the Blue kickers did not even exert themselves until near the last part of the first half, when they had discovered that the Harvard men, after all, were not really weaklings. Then the well-oiled machinery of Yale's attack with trick plays in which there were no blunders, began to assert itself and Coy was enabled to cross the line for a touchdown from which Bigelow kicked a goal. But this advantage was not attained until 25 minutes' actual play had elapsed. It was the result of a series of attacks which began when Coy made a fair catch on his 45-yard line. Short gains were made until a splendid on-side kick by Tad Jones, and his brother, H. Jones, landed the leather on Harvard's 29-yard line. Then, in spite of the Crimson's game defense, the score was quickly made.

The second half was not ten minutes' old when Yale obtained the ball on the Crimson's 30-yard line, through an on-side kick, which no Harvard man could reach. Coy, who made a stab for the oval, missed it and then booted it into a vain effort to pick it up. Four Harvard men were in the act of making a dive for the ball, when, to everybody's surprise, H. Jones, with a catlike jump, hit the leather right out of the Crimson's hands. This lost opportunity by Harvard was the direct cause for Yale's second touchdown. It was followed by a similar error of commission when Brides fumbled a forward pass directly in front of Harvard's goal, but fell on the ball in the midst of several Crimson tacklers. After that it was Coy, with a few bull-like rushes, who
